the chief focus of the book is on the symbolic and linguistic the purpose is to develop an integrated theory of architectural description and architectural intention and this includes the intention of the user as well as that of the designer insofar as architecture is an art norberg schulz is a practicing architect his buildings stand in several countries and he elucidates the nature of architectural reality with a practiced eye and from a practical viewpoint although the methods and theory that his book develops are uncompromisingly rigorous and tightly formed they are everywhere related to actual building through specific examples and through the use of over 100 photographs the structure that norberg schulz has fashioned is surely one of the most impressive intellectual edifices that any architect has ever produced the materials that are organically worked into it include gestalt psychology the mechanics of perception information theory modern analytic philosophy and in particular linguistic analysis and the general theory of signs and symbols the result however is not an eclectic hodge podge all these materials have their place and purpose none is applied extraneously for show or purely decorative effect and all this divergent material had to be joined according to plan within formal bounds in order to produce a theory with equally divergent applications one that can treat not only of the aesthetics of architecture but equally well of its social psychological and cultural effects the chief focus of the book is on the symbolic and linguistic the purpose is to develop an integrated theory of architectural description and architectural intention and this includes the intention of the user as well as that of the designer insofar as architecture is an art translated by thomas mcquillan architecture is a manifestation of the environment in which it is placed observes distinguished architect and theoretician christian norberg schulz a simple enough observation but one that becomes subtle and nuanced in this landmark book which attempts to define for the first time what nordic building really is norberg schulz begins by contrasting the natural world of the north with that of the mediterranean the nordic unendingness against the sun saturated and homogeneous south using themes such as natural domestic universal and foreign he finds the architecture of both regions sensibly related to their environments but whereas the south lends itself to abstraction the north is marked by variation openness and dynamism by low light forests and space exploring the ways built experience takes place norberg schulz charts the distinctive character of land and climate that distinguishes denmark s sweden s finland s and norway s architectural traditions from each other and from those to the south while each of these countries might be said to share regional traits norberg schulz identifies differences the cultivated and closely detailed landscape and architecture of denmark the dramatic structured forms of norway that allow him to account for the way individual nordic architectures evolved attempts to develop a theory of understanding architecture in concrete existential terms following the guidelines of heidegger architecture's historical turn traces the hidden history of architectural phenomenology a movement that reflected a key turning point in the early phases of postmodernism and a legitimating source for those architects who first dared to confront history as an intellectual problem and not merely as a stylistic question jorge otero pailos shows how architectural phenomenology radically transformed how architects engaged theorized and produced history in the first critical intellectual account of the movement otero pailos discusses the contributions of leading members including jean labatut charles moore christian norberg schulz and kenneth frampton for architects maturing after world war ii otero pailos contends architectural history was a problem rather than a given paradoxically their awareness of modernism's historicity led some of them to search for an ahistorical experiential constant that might underpin all architectural expression they drew from phenomenology exploring the work of bachelard merleau ponty heidegger and ricoeur which they translated for architectural audiences initially the concept that experience could be a timeless architectural language provided a unifying intellectual basis for the stylistic pluralism that characterized postmodernism it helped give theory especially the theory of architectural history a new importance over practice however as otero pailos makes clear architectural phenomenologists could not accept the idea of theory as an end in itself in the mid 1980s they were caught in the contradictory and untenable position of having to formulate their own demotion of theory otero pailos reveals how ultimately the rise of architectural phenomenology played a crucial double role in the rise of postmodernism creating the antimodern specter of a historical consciousness and offering the modern notion of essential experience as the means to defeat it through the 1940s and 1950s pagon progressive architects group oslo norway was an alliance of young ciam affiliated norwegian architects known for their innovative joint projects as a group pagon went on to become largely overlooked in the history of modern architecture even though its individual members which included sverre fehn jørn utzon arne korsmo and christian norberg schulz became defining figures in scandinavian and international modernism this book tells the story of pagon for the first time offering an impressive account of the group's projects buildings and approach and demonstrating why pagon's projects are ripe for reappraisal in the international history of modern architecture it shows how pagon's architecture constitutes a unique continuity between the scandinavian functionalism of the late 1930s and the modern movement in the us and an important transitional stage before the emergence of the better known neo avant garde groups within ciam and team 10 published as part of the bloomsbury studies in modern architecture series which brings to light the work of significant yet overlooked modernist architects this book fills a gap in our understanding of mid century modern architecture and highlights the internationally diverse nature of the modern movement
