the culmination of thirty years of research eric leland saak s augustinian theology in the later middle ages offers a comprehensive new interpretation of late medieval augustinianism the first of a two volume work the present book sets the stage and analyzes the conceptual and methodological structures requisite for interpreting the reception of augustine in the later middle ages historically together with explicating the first two of the four pillars of augustinian theology the augustinian hermits political theology the teaching in the order s schools the order s university theology and its moral theology holistically fused with the order s religious identity these distinct yet interconnected components of augustinian theology rather than a narrow theologically defined anti pelagianism provided the context for the emergence of the reformation one of the great maxims of history is that it is written by the victors and nowhere does this find greater support than in the later roman empire between 284 and 395 ad no fewer than 37 men claimed imperial power though today we recognize barely half of these men as legitimate rulers and more than two thirds died at their subjects hands once established in power a new ruler needed to publicly legitimate himself and to discredit his predecessor overt criticism of the new regime became high treason with historians supressing their accounts for fear of reprisals and the very names of defeated emperors chiselled from public inscriptions and deleted from official records in a period of such chaos how can we ever hope to record in any fair or objective way the history of the roman state emperors and usurpers in the later roman empire is the first history of civil war in the later roman empire to be written in english and aims to address this question by focusing on the various ways in which successive imperial dynasties attempted to legitimate themselves and to counter the threat of almost perpetual internal challenge to their rule panegyric in particular emerges as a crucial tool for understanding the rapidly changing political world of the third and fourth centuries providing direct evidence of how in the wake of civil wars emperors attempted to publish their legitimacy and to delegitimize their enemies the ceremony and oratory surrounding imperial courts too was of great significance used aggressively to dramatize and constantly recall the events of recent civil wars the narratives produced by the court in this context also went on to have enormous influence on the messages and narratives found within contemporary historical texts in its exploration of the ways in which successive imperial courts sought to communicate with their subjects this volume offers a thoroughly original reworking of late roman domestic politics and demonstrates not only how history could be erased rewritten and repurposed but also how civil war and indeed usurpation became endemic to the later empire what was the social structure of england in the period 1200 to 1500 what were the basic forms of social inequality to what extent did such divisions generate social conflict how significantly did english society change during this period and what were the causes of social change is it useful to see medieval social structure in terms of the theories and concepts produced within the medieval period itself what does modern social theory have to offer the historian seeking to understand english society in the later middle ages these are the questions which this book seeks to answer beginning with an analysis of class structure of medieval england part one of this book asks to what extent class conflict was inherent within class relations and discusses the contrasting successes and outcomes of such conflict in town and country part two of the book examines to what extent such class divisions interacted with other forms of social inequality such as those between orders nobility and clergy between men and women and those arising from membership of a status group the jews dr rigby s discussion of medieval english society is located within the context of recent historical and sociological debates about the nature of social stratification and using the work of social theorists such as parkin and runciman offers a synthesis of the marxist and weberian approaches to social structure the book should be extremely useful to those undergraduates beginning their studies of medieval england whilst in offering a new interpretative framework within which to examine social structure also interesting those historians who are more familiar with this period with the emperor and the army in the later roman empire ad 235 395 mark hebblewhite offers the first study solely dedicated to examining the nature of the relationship between the emperor and his army in the politically and militarily volatile later roman empire bringing together a wide range of available literary epigraphic and numismatic evidence he demonstrates that emperors of the period considered the army to be the key institution they had to mollify in order to retain power and consequently employed a range of strategies to keep the troops loyal to their cause key to these efforts were imperial attempts to project the emperor as a worthy general imperator and a generous provider of military pay and benefits also important were the honorific and symbolic gestures each emperor made to the army in order to convince them that they and the empire could only prosper under his rule
