women judges are playing increasingly prominent roles in many african judiciaries yet there remains very little comparative research on the subject drawing on extensive cross national data and theoretical and empirical analysis this book provides a timely and broad ranging assessment of gender and judging in african judiciaries employing different theoretical approaches the book investigates how women have fared within domestic african judiciaries as both actors and litigants it explores how women negotiate multiple hierarchies to access the judiciary and how gender related issues are handled in courts the chapters in the book provide policy theoretical and practical prescriptions to the challenges identified and offer recommendations for the future directions of gender and judging in the post covid 19 era including the role of technology artificial intelligence social media and institutional transformations that can help promote women s rights bringing together specific cases from kenya uganda ghana nigeria zambia tanzania and south africa and regional bodies such as ecowas and the african commission on human and peoples rights and covering a broad range of thematic reflections this book will be of interest to scholars students and practitioners of african law judicial politics judicial training and gender studies it will also be useful to bilateral and multilateral donor institutions financing gender sensitive judicial reform programs particularly in africa the open access version of this book available at taylorfrancis.com/books/oa-edit/10.4324/9780429327865/gender-judging-courts-africa jarpa dawuni has been made available under a creative commons attribution non commercial no derivatives 4.0 license gerard emmanuel kamdem kamga serges djoyou kamga and arnold kwesiga explore a relatively new phenomenon namely referred to as illicit financial flows that aim to impoverish the african continent and prevent its economic development there is a direct relationship between illicit financial flows and failed initiatives to realize the right to development on the continent for instance in 2016 africa received 41 billion towards public development while 50 billion left the continent through illicit financial flows the gap between recent economic achievements on the continent and its state of generalized underdevelopment coupled with rampant poverty corruption prolonged economic crisis and political instabilities signals an issue with resource allocations the systematic theft of resources by multinational corporations and criminal networks is a hard blow to the idea of people driven development in line with the pan african vision of an integrated prosperous and peaceful africa proclaimed by agenda 2063 right to development and illicit financial flows from africa dynamics perspectives and prospects provides insights into the dynamics and perspectives on illicit financial flows and its dire impacts on the right to development and development initiatives across the continent the report begins with an overview of the challenges on agricultural systems to make more food available and accessible and lays out the potential of irrigation to make agriculture more productive efficient and profitable for smallholder farmers a discussion on the potential to expand irrigation across africa and barriers to uptake including an analysis of the inherent risks and desired outcomes of irrigation forms the next section the report reviews the traditional and new innovative smallscale and large scale irrigation approaches and technologies that have been implemented in africa followed by an analysis of the experiences of six african countries that have been particularly innovative and successful in terms of their institutional and policy design for irrigation the report closes by drawing some key lessons and offering nine recommendations for actions by african governments and the private sector africa is home to some of the poorest and vulnerable populations in the world the ten poorest countries in the world are in africa sub saharan africa is the region with the highest incidence and greatest depth of poverty in the world fewer than one in five adults in africa has access to the services of a formal or semi formal financial institution microfinance in africa is growing though a broad range of diverse institutions offer financial services to the poor and low income clients in africa these include non governmental organizations non banking financial institutions cooperatives credit unions rural banks rotating savings and credit associations roscas postal financial institutions and an increasing number of commercial banks increasingly technology is being used to expand microfinance outreach mobile phone banking is one such example this book provides an overview of the microfinance sector in africa reviews the performance and impact of microfinance institutions in the region and outlines some of the opportunities and challenges that african microfinance has on hand this synthesis report provides an overview of where africa as a region stands in terms of transitioning to an inclusive green economy it draws on recent studies to summarise the prospective gains and challenges associated with investing in a green economy and outlines a way forward to prioritise policy reforms with a specific section on how to turn strategies and practices challenges into opportunities collectively this report highlights how a transition to a green economy may be achieved within a range of country conditions publisher s description the 72nd volume of the journal is dedicated to actual issues and engineering decisions in corrosion protection research and design in mechanical engineering power electronics investigations of green building materials properties geological research and comparison of two modelling methodologies in flood risk assessment the presented research results and engineering solutions will be useful to a wide range of specialists in the mentioned fields of engineering science empowering people reducing poverty improving livelihoods and promoting economic growth while at the ensuring sustainable ecosystems requires local appropriate and widely replicable solutions in the search for these poor sanitation and poor water supply are major drivers in cycles of disease poverty and powerlessness which avoid people in developing nations to escape poverty sustainable water supply is not only a matter of groundwater and sanitation technical solutions but as much implies tackling major issues concerning hydro social and public health components the african continent has lagged behind other regions in achieving the millennium development goals mdg in water supply and sanitation and continues to be a much neglected water resource this volume disseminates investigations and pointers towards achieving sustainable groundwater supplies in challenging local community environments across the african continent the first part presents the search integrated water sanitation hygiene delivery and best implementation practice the second part through a variety of case studies illustrates the current status and pitfalls that hydrogeologists experience and highlights the relevant challenges that especially sub saharan africa still faces in this battle the chapters present the current situation best practices challenges identified and directions developed by the authors in their advancement towards comprehensive solutions for anyone involved with the development of water supply and sanitation in developing countries this book explores the role of the christian church broadly and diversely defined as both institutions and communities of believers although the focus of the analysis is on institutional behaviors in the politics of hiv aids in africa the author creates a typology of church aids actions no response early narrow response early broad response late narrow response and late broad response and seeks explanations for where churches fall within this typology in terms of institutional resources organizational structures relations with the state and global networks since the discovery of aids in 1981 the pandemic has ravaged through all continents of the world but the impact has been greatest in sub saharan africa where 68 of the world s infected persons live women are hardest hit with 50 of infected adults in 2007 being women there are currently 13 3 million women living with hiv and aids in sub saharan africa making it critical to further focus attention on women of the region this book attempts to highlight the plight of these women and the challenges they face daily within their particular societal context with the advent of and access to antiretroviral drugs and improved technology in the management of hiv and aids it has been rendered a chronic disease in developed countries but not so in sub saharan africa the first chapter of this book examines the epidemiology manifestations and general management of the problem in a setting where prevention and access to antiretroviral drugs has been compounded in many ways by various factors including poverty and lack of regulations that govern rights the socio cultural dimensions are examined reflecting the impact of hiv aids on women and the urgent need for relevant policies and legislation in the african continent the law inevitably plays an important role and the issue in most cases is not whether there is an acceptable or even applicable law in place but whether is enforced this book illustrates that there exist many good laws both at domestic and international treaty levels to address many of the challenges women face in africa the united nations convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women cedaw one such existing international treaty is among the strongest women s rights treaties with many african countries signatory to it this has not alleviated the predicaments of many african women who are still suffering from all kinds of discrimination in virtually every aspect of their lives regional human rights initiatives such as the human and people s rights commission which is charged by the african charter to promote human rights and ensure their protection in africa as well as the african court of human rights which is mandated to be knowledgeable about all aspects concerning the interpretation and application of the charter put forward in their provisions protection for the women again the challenge is how to prompt african states to respect and implement women s rights in a sustained manner this is critical for african countries where without government commitment successful implementation would be uncertain possibly unachievable this book highlights the need for the governments to forge partnerships not only with their own officials and other stakeholders but also with women and various women representative groups the contributions of women to policy discussions on hiv aids should be systematically solicited strategies policies and activities to reverse the aids pandemic in the continent cannot succeed unless women are empowered to meaningfully contribute and participate to these and are an integral part of the leadership that sets the agenda for change and development this guide focuses on the two principal anti corruption conventions in africa the au and un conventions it explains their uses describes why and how to promote national ratification implementation and intergovernmental monitoring and discusses ways to carry out civil society monitoring it also describes briefly the other conventions and instruments having application to corruption issues in africa notably the un convention on transnational organized crime the sadc protocol against corruption and the ecowas protocol on the fight against corruption
