national bestseller one of our most visceral and important memoirs on race in america this is the story of nathan mccall who began life as a smart kid in a close protective family in a black working class neighborhood yet by the age of fifteen mccall was packing a gun and embarking on a criminal career that five years later would land him in prison for armed robbery in these pages mccall chronicles his passage from the street to the prison yard and later to the newsrooms of the washington post and ultimately to the faculty of emory university his story is at once devastating and inspiring at once an indictment and an elegy makes me wanna holler became an instant classic when it was first published in 1994 and it continues to bear witness to the great troubles and the great hopes of our nation with a new afterword by the author with the same personal authority and exhilarating directness he brought to his account of his passage from a prison cell to the newsroom of the Washington Post Nathan McCall delivers a series of front line reports on the state of the races in today's America the resulting volume is guaranteed to shake the assumptions of readers of every pigmentation and political allegiance in what's going on McCall adds up the hidden costs of the stereotype of black athletic prowess which tells African American teenagers that they can only succeed on the white man's terms he introduces a fresh perspective to the debates on gangsta rap and sexual violence he indicts the bigotry of white churches and the complacency of the black suburban middle class celebrates the heroism of Muhammad Ali and defends the truth telling of Alice Walker engaging provocative and utterly fearless here is a commentator to reckon with addressing our most persistent divisions in a voice of stinging immediacy

Journalist Nathan McCall recounts his experiences from his childhood in a working class African American neighborhood to a three year prison term to a job with the Washington Post the critically acclaimed and deeply compelling story of what happens to a long standing African American neighbourhood in Atlanta when gentrification starts moving in and black and white clash over urban territories fear and suspicion build and clashes ensue as more and more whites move into the neighbourhood bringing changes and making familiar people and places disappear in the last decade of the 20th century during a time when African Americans were starting to take inventory of the gains of the civil rights movement and its effects on the lives of black professionals in the public sphere the memoirs of several journalists were published a number of which became national bestsellers African American Journalists examines select autobiographies written by African American journalists in order to explore the relationship between race class gender and journalism practice at the heart of this study is the contention that contemporary memoirs written by African American journalists are quasi political documents manifestos written in reaction to and against the forces of institutionalized racism in the newsroom the memoirs featured in this study include Jill Nelson's Volunteer Slavery My Authentic Negro Experience Nathan McCall's Makes Me Wanna Holler a young black man in America Jake Lamar's Bourgeois Blues an American memoir and Patricia Raybon's My First White Friend Confessions on Race Love and Forgiveness the exploration of these works increases our understanding of the problems that members of other underrepresented groups may face in the workplace

New York Magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country with award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine's consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea
