from the rise of the pan maya movement in guatemala and the zapatista uprising in mexico to the water and gas wars in bolivia and the idle no more movement in canada the turn of the twenty first century has witnessed a notable surge in indigenous political action as well as an outpouring of texts produced by native authors and poets throughout the americas abiayala or the land of plenitude and maturity in the guna language of panama indigenous people are raising their voices and reclaiming the right to represent themselves in politics as well as in creative writing revealing rebellion in abiayala explores the intersections between indigenous literature and social movements over the past thirty years through the lens of insurgent poetics author hannah burdette is interested in how indigenous literature and social movements are intertwined and why these phenomena arise almost simultaneously in disparate contexts across the americas literature constitutes a key weapon in political struggles as it provides a means to render subjugated knowledge visible and to envision alternatives to modernity and coloniality the surge in indigenous literature and social movements is arguably one of the most significant occurrences of the twenty first century and yet it remains understudied revealing rebellion in abiayala bridges that gap by using the concept of abiayala as a powerful starting point for rethinking inter american studies through the lens of indigenous sovereignty an ethics of reading considers how writers of contemporary american fiction represent collective identities by producing literature that bears witness to cultural traumas with chapters focused on important american novelists including toni morrison alice walker sherman alexie edwidge danticat and junot díaz the book works to situate novels that explore ethnic identity in conversation with one another from those intertextual conversations it draws conclusions about how fiction functions as testimony and the ways that readers might work to ethically respond to the testimonial features of the prose the book s investigations of distinct cultural traumas are broad ranging from analyses of african american novels that treat slavery to native american novels that portray land and child theft to dominican and haitian american accounts of us backed hegemony in the caribbean diaspora ultimately the central claim of the book that some works of contemporary american fiction function both didactically and aesthetically as cultural markers around which ethnic identities might be negotiated by writers and readers becomes a kind of call to action for literary studies in the early 21st century encouraging an ideological and pragmatic shift in how contemporary literature is read analysed and discussed by suggesting specific strategies for considering ethnicity in a radically diasporic american context the book calls for critical engagement that is also concerned with the ethics of interpretive praxis which it suggests might be a mechanism for building coalitions for social justice within around and through literature this volume brings together a selection of the papers and round tables delivered at the 39th aedean conference held at the university of deusto in november 2015 the essays in on the move glancing backwards to build a future in english studies often begin with typically academic gestures such as retrieving a classic text and finding new ways of studying its genre or characterization or remarking how certain ungrammatical constructions have gone frequently unnoticed even in well known texts for various reasons or entangling oneself in contentions about the adequacy of dissecting a literary text or linguistic problem by using innovative analytical tools in all cases though there is the intention of putting forth certain views and notions that will help future scholars to deal in a better light with the dilemmas regularly encountered in literary linguistic and cultural studies the book opens with three essays by professors bartholomae pullum and río who demonstrate not only their mastery in their respective subjects but also their ability to tailor their contents to multifarious audiences the next two sections represent the main body of the e book with nearly forty contributions on both literature and cultural studies part ii and language and linguistics part iii these short academic pieces are a representative showcase of the research being done lately in the different areas of expertise the last section of the volume gathers together the results of four research projects dealing with such engaging topics as postcolonial crime fiction or forgotten texts by anglo writers about the spanish civil war it is hard to think of any potential reader schooled in english studies who will not find something suitable to their interests and tastes in this volume
